This is a broader understanding of transdisciplinarity, which means not just a new social contract Lubchenco for science to reorient on society, but rather a new sustainability contract for science to reorient towards the three sustainability relations— i. Hobbes in contrast compares the human nature to the nature of a wolf rather than linking it to the Kantian human being driven by natural rationality. Rather, the core meaning of the modern Sustainability Ethics and Sustainability Research of sustainability encompasses three aspects: continuance, orientation, and relationships.
