It is here that the rest of the neural activity gets ushered in as features are extracted and processed in the parietal and temporal cortices. Its aim is simple: to stimulate, excite and energize thinking in the discipline as to how prose fiction might be fully integrated in the canon of neuroaesthetics and to point to opportunities where neuroimaging studies on literary discourse processing might be conducted in collaborative work bringing humanists and scientists . ByOrenHarman. In addition to rhetorical schemes it has been noted that poetic meter is ideally suited for neuro-literary investigation, not least because both schemes and meter share music-like minimalist structures Burke, : But we all know how addictive the Internet is. It comes nowhere close.

Calliope is silently willing us not to be disappointed. It is about the identification of aesthetic functions and the investigation of their neurobiological causes.
